

What does Fresh Steps deliver?

Not every career runs forever. Career breaks happen, parents take time out to look after children or to be carers, while life after redundancy is also becoming more common. Most of us who have been in work for some years find ourselves living with the consequences of decisions we may have made many years ago. However, our circumstances may now have changed and our work and personal goals may need to change as well.

Fresh Steps is an innovative personal and work development programme which enables people to review their professional progress, reassess their priorities and direction and to set and achieve new personal and work goals.

1 For individuals

Fresh Steps is for anyone who wants to reassess where they are in their lives and work, review their priorities, explore new possibilities and set new goals. It helps deal with change, inter-generational working, reassessing changing values, the setting of goals, and relationships with others. It prepares you for change - coming back into work after an extended period out of employment, changing direction after redundancy, or reassessing as we all work for longer.

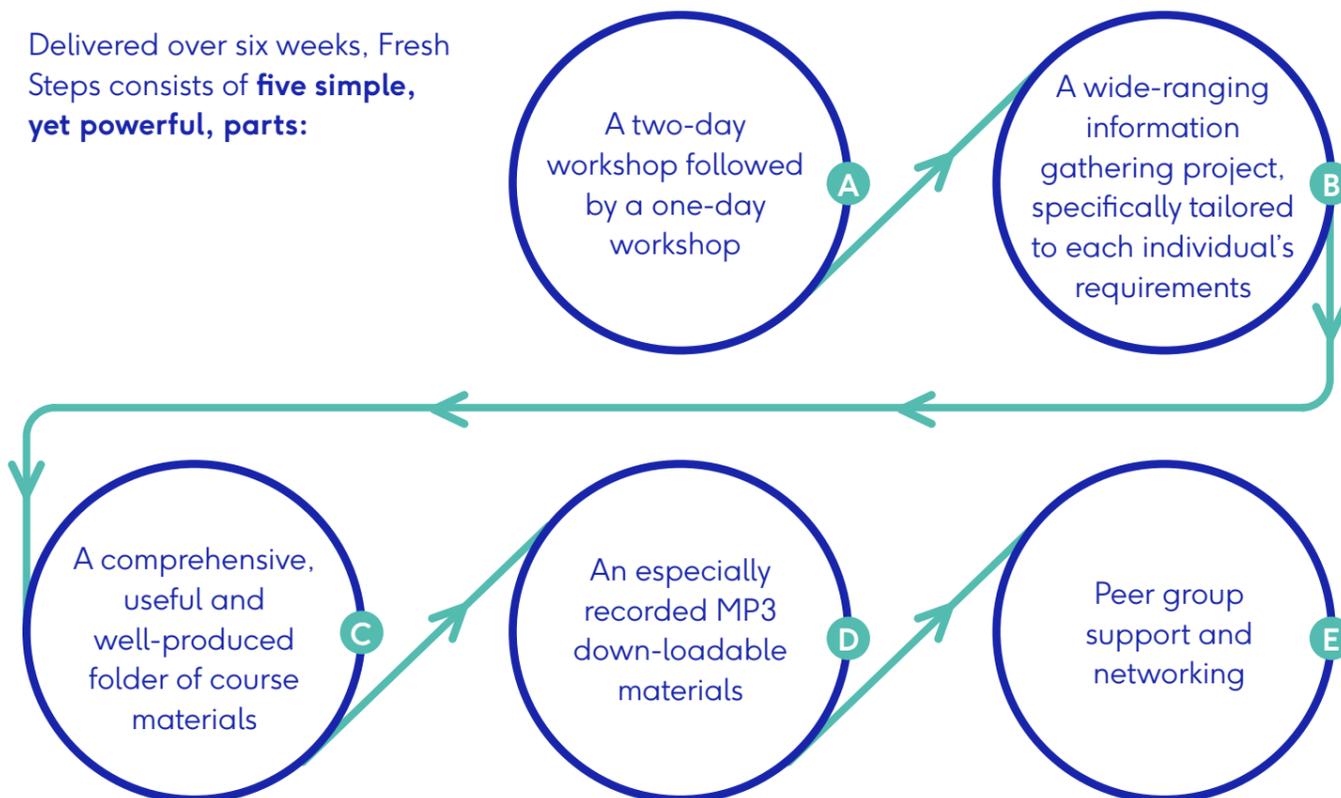

2 For employers

For employers, it helps deal with the trends in demographics, legislation and employment, as well as access the untapped potential and intellectual capital in their staff.

So Fresh Steps can provide employers with support for returners, staff changing career direction or re motivation as well as redundancy provision.

3 The innovative programme structure

Delivered over six weeks, Fresh Steps consists of five simple, yet powerful, parts:
